

What did you like about the activity and environment?

- The separate quiet space, I didn't go in but the idea was great
- The staff were understanding and helpful
- The crowd was well spread out so it made for a relaxing day

What had room for improvement?

- It was quite difficult to find each location, and I saw others struggling with this too
- There wasn't much space in the auditorium between chairs for people to fit through, but difficult to fix

Walking between rows of chairs was a challenge There was a lot of stairs, which can be a barrier for physical access, but the lift was available

Getting there was okay with my school.

Location itself is a 9 but scored down as finding spaces was tricky.

The sign was in a place that was tricky to see on the road, so maybe move it next year or provide a few signs.

People in the blue shirts were a 10, including the YVEC members. In the identity space, the SEND activity and other activities were explained really well.

The conversations in some spaces were fast paced at points, the roads/highways space (on the stage) was a good example of where I found it tricky to stay focussed. They could have slowed down a bit and given us some visuals to help.

The actual inclusive signage was an 8, but there could have been more of a map. People with SEND need to have all the information to hand to feel able to take part.

The leaflets given out were good and can't really think of how it could be better apart from what I've already said.

Atmosphere & inclusion

Did the activity feel safe and inclusive? – Yes, because the staff were very kind, including YVEC. It really felt like they really wanted to hear our thoughts.

Did you enjoy the activity? – Yes, because they felt engaging and listened to us

Young Inspectors - Bucks Youth Summit

Would you recommend this activity to someone else with SEND? – I'm a bit unsure on this, the location was fine, but not overly SEND friendly, but the activities on the whole were inclusive.

Final comments

My words to sum up the day are, fun, engaging and generally inclusive. Well done on organising such a fun event, the effort and hard work made it great
